

UNION STATE TICKET.

Secretary of State, WILLIAM A. PEELLE. Auditor of State, ALBERT LANGE. Treasurer of State, JONATHAN S. HARVEY. Attorney General.
DELANA R. WILLIAMSON. Superintendent of Public Instruction, JOHN 1, MORRISON.

Another Conspiracy.

Few persons who have not devoted especial attention to the maneuverings of the butterent Democracy of this State are aware of the extent of their designs and the deadly effects of the insidious poison already instilled by them into the public mind. It seems to us that no intelligent man can calmly and dispassionately investigate the movements-secret and public-of the leaders of the Democratic faction, now seeking to obtain control of this State and Government, without being convinced that a second conspiracy, more infamous, if possible, than the first, has been formed for the overthrow of the Government, and the destruction of the liberties of the people. We do not charge that all who attended the convention at Indianapolis on the 39th are directly in favor of destroying the Government. We believe many of them are bonest in their expressions of devotion to the flag and the unity of the Republic, but they are being gently tolled by wily conspirators from what they know to be the path of duty, the naturally patriotic instincts of their hearts are being poisoned, their affections for the laws and institutions of the country undermined, until, ere they are aware of it, they will find themselves engulphed in the vortex of revolution and

The man who can object to his Government making use of every instrumentality for self-preservation, has but a few steps to go to oppose every effort for its defense .--The faction that can set up any particular interest, either of property or party, as of more value than country, are but a short truth. The Southern States were not plunged into revolution and rebellion in a day. For many years the conspirators now at the head of the Confederacy labored to poison the minds of the Scuthern people, and to wean their affections from the Governmest. Their plan of operations was precisely similar to that adopted by the Democratic faction in this State. They persuaded the people that a certain property interest was of more value than the Govecoment; that the Government was seeking to destroy that interest, and therefore they had a right to destroy the Government. It took long years of cunning intrigue to work the Southern people up to the proper point, and the design would never have succeeded had not the most outrageous system of mob law been inaugurated, and free discussion suppressed.

The proceedings of the Democratic faction at Indianapolis, develop precisely the same kind of tactics. The whole effort of the imported demagogues, on that occasion, was to convince the people that property in Slaves is essential to preserve the social separation of the white and black races; that such a separation is of infinitely more value than any form of Government; and that the Government, through the Administration, is endeavoring to bring about the social and political equality of those races. Therefore, every white man is justifiable in withdrawing his support from the Govern-

The speakers did not dare go further. But the further conclusion is so palpable it was unnecessary for them to state it in terms. If a man is justifiable in withholdlog his support from his country, he can not be condemned for seeking its destruction. If the action of the rulers is of such an infamous character as to prevent him from sustaining the government, until he can legally change the rulers, they are of a sufficiently mischievous character to bring no condemnation upon those who seek their overthrow. Stripped of all verbinge the logic of Carlisle's and Wickliffe's speeches was as decidedly and destructively against the Government as the bullets and bayonets of Jeff Davis' army. Aye, more dangerous. For, coming to our prople disguised as Union men from slave States, who have made great sacrifices in behalf of the country, they have gained the confidence of the people, been admitted to their cougcils, and consulted as to the best plan for crushing the rebellion. The people have felt disposed to ask for their advice and to give unusual weight to their suggestions. This generous confidence of the people these willy emissaries of the slave power have turned to account. Having gained the northern public ear, they are untiring intheir efforts to fill it with worse poison than that of asps.

"Oh for a tongas to curse the slave, Whose tresson tike a dead, blight, Comes o'er the coancils of the brave, And blasts them in their hour of might." But the conspirators have not confined their attentions to preventing enlistments.

Will our people believe it, they have scattered the poison farther than that. They are to-day, laboring systematically and persistently to create disaffection in the army. even to breaking it up. We do not speak unadvisedly. We know the truth of what we affirm. Letters are being written to the giving me notice not to let certain disloyal volunteer regiments, from this State at least, informing the soldiers "that the Government has resolved on liberating all the niggers; that they are to be armed and uniformed; that they are to be placed on an equality with the white regiments, and that the gallant volunteers of Indiana are henceforth to be regarded as of no more value than negroes, and in every respect to be degraded to their level." They are told "that the war has degenerated into a mere Abolition foray; that the preservation of the Union is the last thing the Administration has in view, and that its great and only aim is the liberation of the slaves, and the bringing about of the social and political equality of the white and black races." The volunteers are in a situation, somewhat similar to that of the Southern people before the rebellion broke out. They are now unable to procure papers regularly, and hence are not sufficiently posted with the progress of events to detect the falsehoods with which they are insidiously plied. Indignant at what they are made to believe is base ingratitude on the part of the Government, they are ready to write home as one gentleman in the 24th regiment did the other day -that if this war is to be turned into an abolition foray, they are prepared to quit, " even if they have to desert." the offspring of diseased imagination. We ian." It is entitled an "Appeal to the call the attention of the people to them, that North," and is filled with elaborate denunbling in the balance. If true patriotism has already been sapped, we will rapidly emerge as a military despotism. If, how. at the time it was written, and how little ever, as we believe and trust in God, the people of this country are worthy the instigogues who have sought their confidence but to betray it, who prate of their liberties but to steal them away, and who falsely disguises, they will consign them to the "immortality of infamy" that preserves the memory of Benedict Arnold.

Mr. Wickliffe had much to say in It will be remembered that this resolution passed the House by the decided vote of 121 to 2. Vallandigham and Voorhees both dodged the vote, though they were in their seats but a few minutes before the vote was taken. Why didn't Mr. Wickliffe pour forth his denunciations upon his colleague who sat upon the platform. Every Republican member of the House, we believe, voted for the resolution. Wh tan amount of impudence must Mr. Wickliffe possess to charge all the Republicans of the House in the face of this vote with being abolitionists. Out upon the falsifier !

From the Terre Haute Journal. Ma. EDITOR :- In your description of the speech of Ex-Gov. Wright at Rockville on Saturday last, you forgot an incident which is too good to be lost, and which is now

While the Governor was speaking of the propriety of putting the negro in the war to do the drudgery and to save our soldiers from the ditches and trenches, some Democrat in the crowd cried out " we have chough white men to finish the war." "Yes," said the Governor, "we have nough white men, but they are not all of right sort," The hit was so palpable that the crowd went off in a burst of laughter, and that Democrat left as soon as it was convenient to sneak away unobserved. The Governor is a sly fox, and many hought his allusion was towards the Vallandighamers and Voorheesites of this District, who claim to be as good Union and war men as any body; like the ostrich when pursued, presumes the whole body is hid when the head is under cover.

If we could get Gov. Wright after that espirant for Congressional honors who has so many o's and e's in his name, it is very probable that the aspirant aforesaid would bave many more ohe and much less case, before he could get sately through.

EVANSVILLE, Aug. 2, 1862.

In your paper of the 2d instant, is an article, which purports to have been written by some one who has been in my office, persons from the Cumberland river have a permit for goods.

Such a notice was given by some persons, there being three in the company,) whose names are not remembered, and afterwards one of the same persons returned to my office, and urgently requested that the same disloyal persons should be permitted to have goods this time, for fear if they were then prohibited, suspicion might rest upon them as informers, and thus their character would be injured at home amongst their neighbors; and to save the character of those Union men, the persons said to be disloyal, were allowed to buy some small bills of calicoes hoop skirts, childrens' shoes, and other dangerous articles, in all amounting to say one thousand dollars worth. I am inclined to the opinion that their ain't much difference as to loyalty in the characters of all the persons concerned. The insinuation in the same article that gold had some undue influence in the transaction, don't apply to any who are employed in and about my office.

Very respectfully, A. L. ROBINSON, Surveyor,

[From the Philadelphia Press.] Our correspondent at Fortress Monroe sends us a handbill which had been gratuitously thrown around the streets of Richmond, and which he obtained from a Union soldier. SENATOR POWELL .- A gendeman of unimpeachable veracity informed us that some weeks ago he was conversing with several of the Southern Union members of Conhis speech about the Crittenden resolution, gress, in Washington, when Senator Powell approached. "Well, Powell," said one of the Union men jocularly, " I think we'll have you all right before long; you are coming over to our side." "Coming heli," replied the patriotic and polished Senator from Kentucky, "you are coming over to my side." It is evident that this bypocritical creature does not consider himself as on the side of the loyal men at all. How long will Kentucky tolerate this second Jesse D. Bright.—Nashville Union.
